Journey to Independence

In response to the growing need to teach older teens and young adults the skills they need as they Journey to Independence, EMARC has created a program called Real World House. This program is the principle that individuals with learning challenges benefit by continuous reinforcement and the introduction of new concepts. Since the road to independence is a journey and not a short trip, EMARC's Journey to Independence will support and work together with families and schools to achieve positive outcomes for its participants.

This weekend, school vacation and overnight program will be fun, giving participants the opportunity to be in the Real World House. Its focus, however, will be on the acquisition of the skills necessary to live and work in our community. Using a beautiful home in Andover as our base, we will teach health, money, cooking, cleaning, employment, leisure and safety skills.

Director

Nancy Nastasi is the Director of Journey to Independence, an innovative EMARC program. Nancy has been the Director of our Recreational Department and she continues to coordinate adult and leisure programs. Nancy also works for Woburn High School as the school-to-work transition teacher in the Next Wave program. Nancy has extensive experience in job development, job coaching and preparing students for a successful life after high school.
